Why Work With Studycentral?

There are numerous ways to target students and attract them to your range of study programmes and courses, but selecting the best methods to do so, especially on an international level, can be challenging. From small institutions to multinational organisations, there is sure to be a Studycentral solution that fits your needs. We work with you to select the educational fairs, and the relevant countries, that best meet your specific requirements.

If you're looking for new students to join your institution, Studycentral should be your first port of call. We can help you meet your targets of recruiting those all-important, prestigious students.

At Studycentral, we have exceptional insider knowledge of the fairs in our diverse portfolio, which have been carefully selected to meet our criteria. We only partner with reputable education fairs and associates, so we have confidence in the events and services we offer.

Our global network of international exhibitions, coupled with the value we create for clients, is the main reason why people and institutions choose to partner with us.

UniversityFairs.com

UniversityFairs.com is an industry leading web-based solution for managing all of the information related to education fairs and the institutions and exhibitors associated with events. UniversityFairs.com was created as a resource for education recruiters and international students looking to find premier education fairs and stay informed about the education industry. You can browse our database of global educational fairs, view a list of institutions or courses, and also book an education fair package conveniently online.

Our website simplifies the process of finding, selecting and booking the best education fair. We've made every effort to ensure that our website is fast, easy to use and rich in information that you need for planning your next educational event including market information, detailed fair schedule, and exhibitor lists.

Customer Commitment

Studycentral has a strong commitment to its customers with a team that is dedicated to meeting or exceeding customer needs. We offer recommendations and assistance to address any issues that may arise with determining the right fair.

We pride ourselves in always giving our customers an exceptional service, therefore assuring you of quality, knowledge, and superior performance. Our team values the welfare of your interests as much as our own.

We will support your preparations every step of the way, from the moment you initially contact us, to after the conclusion of the fairs you attend.

Achieve Better Recruitment Outcomes at Education Fairs

Education fairs are an ideal way to access your target audience of prospective students. Exhibitions do an excellent job of complementing other forms of marketing, but the face-to-face meeting of prospective students can be priceless. You can improve your database of potential applicants, meet and support current applicants, and research cultural differences, within the host city and the country as a whole.
